A Somber Return to Va. Tech

Wary students arrive back on campus 6 days after massacre

BLACKSBURG, VA. | Still grieving and increasingly wary of the media spotlight, Virginia Tech students returned to their beleaguered campus Sunday, preparing to salvage the final weeks of a semester eclipsed by violence. The scene on campus resembled move-in day in late summer, with parents helping their children carry suitcases into dormitories. There were tears and hugs goodbye. But instead of excitement for the year ahead, there was simply determination to endure and regroup in the fall. When classes resume Monday, the university will give students three choices: They can continue their studies through the end of the semester next week, take a grade based on what they have done so far, or withdraw from a course without penalty. A week after the worst shooting massacre in modern U.S. history, a number of students said they had been drawn to the comforts of home immediately after the shooting, but now were drawn back to the tight-knit Virginia Tech community. "When we hit Route 460 and we could see the campus, we both started crying," said sophomore Ashleigh Shifflett, eating a picnic lunch with her sister Megan near memorials to the victims. "I was happy to see my family, but I felt like I needed to be here, and when I came back here, it was like I'm home." (AP)

FOUND

Roadside Hides Cash, Rare Beer, Atlantis

A couple picking up trash along a road found a winning scratch-off lottery ticket that led them to a $1,000 jackpot. Ronnie and Tina Abbott said they found a lottery ticket worth $15 Sunday while picking up garbage along a Clinton County, Ind., road. The next day, they cashed in that ticket at a local store and bought one that turned out to be a $1,000 winner. During their trash-collection excursion, the couple also found three unopened cans of Billy Beer, a failed brand endorsed by former President Jimmy Carter's late brother, Billy Carter. "That tells you how often it's cleaned out there," Tina Abbott said. (AP)

BEHAVIOR

Dad Markets New Discipline Concept

A Knoxville, Tenn., man says he wasn't trying to shame his 14-year-old son when he made the boy wear a sandwich board reading, "I abused and sold drugs." "I'm not out here doing this to humiliate my son," the father told WATE-TV as the teen walked the sidewalk Wednesday in front of his school. "I'm doing this because I love him," he said. "We do have an extreme drug problem in America, and maybe it's time for extreme measures."

The father said he learned his son was using marijuana and OxyContin by reading the boy's MySpace page. The school's principal soon asked the father to call off the punishment, which he did. (AP)

They'll Be So Bored

He's a veteran of long-distance sailing voyages in all kinds of weather. She's never sailed outside the Hudson River. But together, 55-year-old Reid Stowe and his 23-year-old girlfriend, Soanya Ahmad, embarked Saturday on a voyage that they intend to take them three times around the globe and last 1,000 days and nights — nonstop, with no port calls for supplies or a walk on solid ground. Provisions were crammed inside the boat. (AP)

Word 'Avast' Really Needs a Vacation

At least 750 people attended "Pyratecon," a New Orleans weekend of piratical dress-up and lore. Billed as the first indoor pirate convention anywhere, it's at least triple the size originally envisioned by organizer Rudy Arceo, a sheriff's deputy in New Orleans. "We were trying to do a little conference, a couple hundred people. But the word spread throughout the country," through reenactment groups and pirate Web sites, he said. (AP)

Calif. Representative Dies of Cancer

Millender-McDonald had requested leave to deal with illness

WASHINGTON | Rep. Juanita Millender-McDonald, D-Calif., died early Sunday of cancer, an aide said.

Millender-McDonald, who was 68, died at her home in Carson, Calif., said her chief of staff, Bande McQueen.

McQueen could provide no details about which form of cancer Millender-McDonald had. He said she had

Rep. Juanita Millender-McDonald, D-Calif., died early Sunday from cancer.

The congresswoman had asked for a four- to six-week leave of absence from the House last week to deal with her illness.

She was in her seventh term representing a heavily Democratic Southern California district that includes Compton, Long Beach and parts of Los Angeles.

"California and the nation have lost a great friend and public servant," said California Democratic Party Chairman Art Torres, who served with Millender-McDonald in the California state Legislature. "She was a champion for the consumer and fought injustice wherever she saw it. She always valued public service and served her state and nation with grace and honor."

Millender-McDonald is the second member of Congress to die this year of cancer. Republican Rep. Charles Norwood Jr. of Georgia died in February after battling cancer and lung disease.

Navy Begins Probing Blue Angel Wreckage

Pilot killed Saturday during a maneuver at an air show in S.C.

PENSACOLA, FLA. | Investigators looked through wreckage Sunday to determine what caused a Navy Blue Angel jet to crash during a maneuver on Saturday, while the military identified the fallen pilot as a 32-year-old who was performing in one of his first shows with the team.

Lt. Cmdr. Kevin J. Davis of Pittsfield, Mass., was in his second year with the Blue Angels, the team known for its high-speed, aerobatic demonstrations, Lt. Cmdr. Garrett Kasper said.

Beaufort, S.C., the site of Saturday's crash, a somber crowd watched Sunday as six jets flew overhead in formation. Smoke streamed behind one of the jets as it peeled away from the others to complete the "missing man formation," the traditional salute for a lost military aviator.

The Navy said it could be at least three weeks before it announces what may have caused the crash. The squadron was scheduled to return to Pensacola Naval Air Station late Sunday. (AP)

Autopsies Reveal Wounds

Cho fired more than 100 times during the Virginia Tech attack

BLACKSBURG, VA. | Virginia Tech gunman Seung-Hui Cho fired enough shots to cause more than 100 wounds in his 32 victims before killing himself with a bullet to his head, a medical examiner said Sunday.

Dr. William Massello, the assistant medical examiner based in Roanoke, said pathologists have sent blood samples for toxicology testing to determine whether Cho was on drugs at the time of his rampage. It could take as long as two weeks to get the results of those tests, he said.

Cho was not especially accurate with his shots, Massello said, but hit many of the victims several times. His shots caused more than 100 wounds.

Many of the victims had defensive wounds, indicating they tried to shield themselves from Cho's fire, but there was no evidence in the Mourners visit a makeshift memorial to the students and faculty killed during the Virginia Tech attack last week. Students began returning to the campus on Sunday.

autopsies that Cho struggled with any of the people he killed.

Cho died from a gunshot to his temple, Massello said. Even if his brain had been intact, doctors would not have been able to tell whether he had any sort of brain abnormality. Those are usually neurological or chemical disorders that are not detectable during an autopsy, he said.

Many of the victims' bodies left the medical examiner's office on Thursday, the official said.

Massello said it took four doctors working for days to complete the autopsies on all 32 victims and Cho. (AP)

Roberta Perry, who owns a public relations firm in suburban Philadelphia, has adopted a healthier lifestyle after years of unsuccessful attempts at dieting.

Study: Diets Lose Power Over Time

Researchers find weight-loss results rarely last very long

LOS ANGELES | Roberta Perry has tried it all to lose the pounds — organized diet programs, prescription pills, psychotherapy, even hypnosis.

Those efforts worked for a while, but the weight inevitably crept back up. After years of yo-yo dieting, Perry realized it would take more than gimmicks to slim down.

"As much as I would like to have a magic bullet, I knew the only way to lose weight was eat less and exercise more," Perry said.

Her experience is a common one. After examining 31 weight-loss studies, researchers at the University of California, Los Angeles, have found that long-term dieting does not keep the pounds off. The findings confirm what many scientists have been saying all along: Losing weight is easy. Keeping it off is another story.

"It's just plain difficult to modify your diet and turn away from the pleasures of eating," said Michael Goran, an obesity researcher at the University of Southern California.

The UCLA researchers analyzed 31 diet studies that followed people two to five years after they went on diets. Between one-third and two-thirds gained back the weight they lost. A small number were able to successfully maintain their weight loss.

"We're not saying don't make some kind of effort," said Traci Mann, who led the study. "It means that people should be quite clear that a diet is a temporary fix." (AP)

6 Civilians Die, 40 Wounded In Suicide Bombing Attack

A suicide bomber blew himself up Sunday in an eastern Afghan city, killing six civilians and wounding 40 others, officials said, while a roadside blast hit an Afghan intelligence service vehicle, killing all four people in the car. The remote-controlled roadside bomb killed two intelligence service officers, a soldier and their driver in Mehtar Lam, said Laghman provincial police chief Abdul Karim. (AP)

Israeli officials defended the killings as part of operations that have drastically reduced the number of attacks against Israelis. (AP)

Sarkozy, Royal to Fight to the Finish

Conservative, Socialist French candidates will face May runoff vote

PARIS | Conservative Nicolas Sarkozy and Socialist Segolene Royal advanced Sunday to a runoff for the French presidency, offering a stark choice of left or right for a nation eager for new direction.

Sarkozy was heading into the second round with a clear advantage. Results from the Interior Ministry, with more than 95 percent of the vote counted, had him leading with 31 percent, while Royal was at 25 percent. Turnout was huge at 84-85 percent.

In the May 6 runoff election, Sarkozy should be able to count on votes from the far right, whose champion, Jean-Marie Le Pen, suffered his second-worst showing in five presidential campaigns. Late results had him at 10 percent.

Royal's score was the highest for a Socialist since President Francois Mitterrand in 1988. But she could struggle to make up the gap with

The scramble will now be focused on voters in the middle ground of French politics and others who deserted the left and right in favor of farmer's son and lawmaker Francois Bayrou, one of the big surprises of the campaign. He placed third on Sunday, with 18 percent of the vote, according to the partial results.

Given Sarkozy's strength, Royal would have to pick up a strong majority of Bayrou's supporters — which could be tough — to win.

Both Sarkozy, a Hungarian immigrant's son, and Royal, a military officer's daughter who beat Socialist heavyweights to win her party's nomination, have traveled long roads to get to this point — one step away from taking over one of Europe's biggest economic, military and diplomatic powers.

Sarkozy, who last week cited Martin Luther King Jr., told a cheering crowd of supporters Sunday night that he wants to unite the nation around "a French dream."

Royal said the May 6 vote offered "a clear choice between two very different paths."

"France is going to choose its destiny and its face," she said. "I invite you to invent a new France." (AP)

47 Reported Dead in Somali Battles

MOGADISHU, SOMALIA | Insurgents and Ethiopian troops backing Somali government forces fought gunbattles in Mogadishu on Sunday, while a human rights group said at least 47 people died — some caught in crossfire in the previous day's fighting.

The government, warning of an upcoming offensive, called on residents living in insurgent strongholds to leave their homes.

Sudan Ali Ahmed, the chairman of the Elman Human Rights Organization, said six insurgents and 41 civilians died. Some of the civilians died of their injuries after being wounded during the previous day's heavy fighting, he said.

Ahmed said the figures were based on what Mogadishu residents, hospitals and activists reported to his group Sunday. There were no casualty figures for either Ethiopian or Somali government soldiers.

The new tallies bring the death toll in five days of fighting in Mogadishu to at least 212, with more than 291 wounded, according to the human rights group.

Sunday's fighting was less intense than the previous day's, which saw battles spread across the northern and southern districts of Mogadishu. SALAD DAHUL (AP)

Gunmen Target Iraqi Religious Sect

23 die after militants stop bus in Iraq's north, separate riders by faith

BAGHDAD | Gunmen shot and killed 23 members of an ancient religious sect in northern Iraq on Sunday after stopping their bus and separating out followers of other faiths while car bombings in the capital killed at least another 20 people.

Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki, in Egypt to drum up support among Arab leaders for his Shiite-led government, told Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak that Iraq was not embroiled in a civil or sectarian war. Key Arab leaders pressured him to step up reconciliation efforts to include Sunni insurgents if he expects Arab support.

In the northern Iraq attack, armed men stopped the bus as it was carrying workers from a textile factory in Mosul to their hometown of Bashika, which has a mixed population of Christians and Yazidis — a primarily Kurdish sect that worships an angel figure considered to be the devil by some Muslims and Christians.

The gunmen checked the passengers' identification cards, then asked all Christians to get off the bus, police Brig. Mohammed al-Wagga said. With the Yazidis still inside, the gunmen drove them to eastern Mosul, where they were lined up along a wall and shot to death, al-Wagga said.

Abdul-Karim Khalaf, a police spokesman for Ninevah province, said the executions were in response to the killing two weeks ago of a Yazidi woman who had recently converted to Islam after she fell in love with a Muslim and ran off with him. Her relatives had disapproved of the match and dragged her back to Bashika, where she was stoned to death, he said.

In Baghdad, two suicide car bombs exploded within moments of each other in Baiyaa, a mixed Sunni-Shiite area. In all, at least 72 people were killed or found dead in Iraq on Sunday. THOMAS WAGNER (AP)

Iraqi PM Orders Halt to Building Of Disputed Wall

CAIRO, EGYPT | Iraq's Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki said Sunday that he has ordered a halt to the U.S. military construction of a barrier separating a Sunni enclave from surrounding Shiite areas in Baghdad after fierce criticism over the project at home.

The U.S. military announced last week that it was building a three-mile-long concrete wall in Azamiyah, a Sunni stronghold in northern Baghdad whose residents have often been the victims of retaliatory mortar attacks by Shiite militants following bombings usually blamed on Sunni insurgents.

U.S. and Iraqi officials defended plans for the barrier as an effort to protect the neighborhood, but residents and Sunni leaders complained it was a form of discrimination that would isolate the community.

U.S. military spokesman Lt. Col. Christopher Garver declined to comment on whether construction of the wall would stop. (AP)

Troops guard the Election Commission office in Port Harcourt, Nigeria, Sunday. Ballot shortages and open rigging are among the accusations marring the election.

Fraud Allegations Fly in Nigeria Vote

Opposition candidate says problem-plagued poll should be annulled

LAGOS, NIGERIA | A top opposition candidate said Sunday that Nigeria's presidential election was the worst ever conducted in the country and the results should be annulled, while an American election observer group said the vote did not meet international standards.

While the government acknowledged there were widespread problems with Saturday's vote, it defended the election as free and fair. "The election has been largely successful: We've broken the jinx," said Electoral Commission Chairman Maurice Iwu.

Associated Press reporters, however, witnessed ballot paper shortages in opposition strongholds and open rigging favoring the ruling party of outgoing President Olusegun Obasanjo. Local media reported intimidation by thugs with knives and guns.

Vice President Atiku Abubakar, who fell out with Obasanjo last year and ran as an opposition candidate, said no free and fair election could be arranged by the current electoral commission, which he accuses of partisanship toward the ruling party and Obasanjo.

"I have already rejected the election. They have no alternative than to cancel the election altogether," he said.

Meanwhile, a leading U.S.-based observer mission said the entire electoral process did not meet international standards. The International Republican Institute's 59 observers identified numerous voting-day irregularities, including ballot box stuffing and phony results.

The Transition Monitoring Group, an independent election monitoring group claiming 50,000 Nigerian observers, also called for the election to be annulled, saying voting hadn't been held in many of the country's 36 states and had started very late in many others.

The elections were seen as a major test for Nigeria, which has never seen power handed from one elected leader to another in its 47-year history. Previous attempts in Africa's top oil producer have been overturned by annulments or military coups. Electoral officials said they hoped to release results by late Monday. EDWARD HARRIS (AP)

Anacostia River Movie to Debut

Students produce film as part of Multi-Media Training Institute

Tourists and tall ships at the Baltimore Inner Harbor filled the lens of student videographer Robert Hopkins as he lined up the perfect camera angle.

A fellow student noted that the tall ships that once plied the Anacostia River brought slaves across the ocean.

"Some slaves jumped off the ships because they would rather be dead," Rinita Hutchinson, 14, said knowingly. "And they would throw the bodies of slaves who died in the water. The sharks ate them."

The past year has been filled with revelations for Hutchinson and a handful of other District youths who have produced a video about the Anacostia River and the neighborhood that shares its name.

Their documentary, "Lessons From the Waterfront: The Anacostia," will have its first showing during a $100-a-ticket river cruise Monday.

The cruise will raise money for the Multi-Media Training Institute, a private organization that has been teaching young people the intricacies of making videos for 25 years.

The documentary is the fruit of script-writing classes at the institute, which also offers courses in sound production, entrepreneurship and Web design.

The script was written and directed by the students, tapping into a priority for environmental groups.

"The goal is that since it's produced by kids, maybe it will resonate more with a younger audience," said Jim Connolly, executive director of the Anacostia Watershed Society.

Korean Community Still in Shock

CENTREVILLE, VA. | Korean Americans in the community where Seung-Hui Cho grew up are still reeling from the shock of learning that the Virginia Tech gunman was one of their own. Cho moved to Northern Virginia when he was 8 and was raised in a growing immigrant community in which the pressure to succeed was overwhelming and seeking mental health care carries a stigma.

After the slayings, Korean

Americans held prayer meetings and candlelight vigils as they struggled to understand how Cho slipped through the cracks.

"I think we failed him as a society at large," says Josephine Kim, a mental health expert who also emigrated from South Korea at age 8. "I think our community failed him, the school system failed him, and definitely the immigrant life really failed him. It's against our culture to talk about these things." (AP)

Political Clicks

It's a virtual new world for candidates in the '08 White House race

DIGITAL LIFE | To find volunteer Redaktisto Noble, you have to go to John Edwards' campaign headquarters. Not in Iowa or New Hampshire, but in cyberspace.

There, Noble can lead visitors along a boardwalk lined with billboards describing campaign issues such as Iraq and health care. On the way out, visitors can pick up free "Edwards for President" T-shirts that their animated alter egos can wear.

It's old-fashioned campaign work in a new setting. Noble works at Edwards' virtual campaign headquarters in the online world called Second Life that counts more than 5 million members — many of whom can vote in real life.

Democrat or Republican, the White House campaigns are using new online tools this year in an effort to attract supporters who they hope will give not only their votes, but also their time and money to the effort. The technology is new, but not the political chase — candidates want to be where the voters are. And Americans today are spending their time online.

Every presidential candidate is on MySpace, the popular networking site that counts more than 64 million current members.

Democratic Sen. Barack Obama recently became the first candidate to sign up 100,000 MySpace friends. And he has his own version of social networking called My.BarackObama.com that has allowed Virginia mothers Ruthi David and Kulia Petzoldt to become active in politics for the first time.

They formed Families for Obama on Feb. 10, the day the Illinois senator formally announced his candidacy, and they've already grown to 24 chapters nationwide. They say the online tools have allowed them to become engaged in the campaign and estimate that 80 percent of the chapter administrators are also first-time organizers.

Petzoldt points out that hiring a baby sitter in order to volunteer at campaign headquarters would have been too expensive and making phone bank calls from home problematic with her toddler screaming in the background.

But with the online tools provided by the Obama campaign, she can recruit members, blog and solicit donations. They also have their own site, where they have threaded discussions and share photos.

Additionally, the 2008 presidential contenders may soon be slugging it out in cyberspace, with pioneering online-only debates being planned for early next fall, a new media partnership says.

The political blog Huffington Post, online portal Yahoo and Slate Magazine will host the debates — one for Democratic candidates, one for Republicans — sometime in autumn, with PBS host Charlie Rose serving as moderator, the sponsors planned to announce Monday. Voters will be invited to submit questions and can blog in real time to share their opinions.

Barbosa Lights Up The Lakers

'Brazilian Blur' drops 19 points in second half of Suns' Game 1 win

NBA PLAYOFFS | The "Brazilian Blur" breathed life into the Phoenix offense, and Kobe Bryant went from awesome to awful.

The result was a second-half rally that gave the Suns a 95-87 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers in their first-round playoff opener on Sunday.

Leandro Barbosa scored 19 of his 26 points in the second half, including 15 consecutive Phoenix points in one stretch, to match his career playoff scoring high. Amare Stoudemire, back in the postseason after missing last year's while recovering from two knee surgeries, added 23 points and 12 rebounds.

Bryant scored 39, but only 11 in the second half. The NBA's scoring champ was 1-for-10 shooting in the fourth quarter, when Phoenix pulled away.

Steve Nash had 20 points and 10 assists and Shawn Marion 16 points and 16 rebounds for a Phoenix team that struggled mightily until Barbosa provide the spark, highlighted by a 31-footer buzzer beater at the end of the third quarter. BOB BAUM (AP)

RISE UP: LeBron James breaks through the Wizards' defense for two of his 23 points. He also added nine boards and seven assists.

Cavs Overwhelm Wizards

Despite Jamison's 28 points and 14 boards, Wiz lose handily, 97-82

WIZARDS | Flat on his back, LeBron James grimaced as he looked toward the arena rafters, where giant banners spelled out his team's playoff motto: "RISE UP!"

And he did.

Ignoring a sprained left ankle, James stayed in the game to score 23 points and Larry Hughes added 27 Sunday, lifting the Cleveland Cavaliers over the depleted Washington Wizards 97-82 in the opener of this Eastern Conference series.

James turned his ankle on a drive in the third quarter but refused to come out, adding nine rebounds and seven assists in 44 minutes.

"I had no intention of not coming back," he said. "First game of the playoffs, we've got to set a tone."

The Cavaliers were expected to blow through their second straight first-round matchup with the undermanned Wizards, missing All-Stars Gilbert Arenas (knee surgery) and Caron Butler (broken hand).

However, Game 1 was no walk in the park for the Cavs on a beautiful, sunny spring day in Cleveland.

Antawn Jamison scored 28 points with 14 rebounds, and Jarvis Hayes had 18 points for Washington, which was still within 10 points with more than seven minutes remaining.

But in the fourth quarter, the Cavs' inside presence, 7-foot-3 center Zydrunas Ilgauskas, scored seven straight points to help Cleveland push its lead to 89-74 with five minutes left. TOM WITHERS (AP)

2 Goals off Nunez's Foot Lead Dallas Past Rapids

Ramon Nunez scored twice to lead FC Dallas to a 3-1 win over the Colorado Rapids on Sunday. Nunez broke a 1-1 tie in the 78th minute when he curled a free kick from the left side over a wall of defenders. The ball bounced off the fingertips of Rapids goalie Bouna Coundoul and into the right corner of the net. Also in the 29th minute, Nunez took a pass from Dax McCarty and dribbled around Brandon Prideaux at the top of the goalie box, while placing a shot inside the left post. The Rapids have not won a regular-season game at FC Dallas in six years. (AP)

Ugla's 2 homers and 6 RBI help Obermueller get first win in 2 years

NATIONALS | Dan Ugla homered twice and drove in six runs, and Miguel Cabrera hit a drive into the upper deck to help the Florida Marlins beat the Washington Nationals 12-6 Sunday.

Wes Obermueller earned his first major league victory in almost two years, and Josh Willingham also homered for Florida.

Obermueller (1-0) allowed two runs and four hits in six-plus innings. He walked four and struck out five.

Obermueller had not pitched in the majors since Sept. 17, 2005, with Milwaukee, and his previous win came on May 17, 2005, at Washington.

Jerome Williams (0-4) gave up 10 runs, nine earned, and nine hits in six innings. He walked four and

Orioles sweep Jays at home for first time in 13 years with 7-3 win

ORIOLES | Nick Markakis and Miguel Tejada each had three RBI, and the Baltimore Orioles beat Toronto 7-3 Sunday to complete their first three-game home sweep of the Blue Jays in 13 years.

Steve Trachsel (1-1) allowed one run in 5 1/3 innings to earn his first victory with the Orioles, who have won four straight and eight of nine. It's Baltimore's second four-game winning streak of the season; the Orioles won four in a row only once last year — in August.

Jay Payton contributed three hits and scored twice in his first start with Baltimore. He spent the first 2 1/2 weeks of the season on the DL

Bonds Whacks No. 740 in 2-1 Win

BASEBALL | Barry Bonds is beginning to close in on Hank Aaron — fast.

Bonds hit his 740th home run Sunday, connecting for the second consecutive game and helping Matt Cain earn his first win of the season in the San Francisco Giants' 2-1 victory over the Arizona Diamondbacks.

Cain pitched a three-hitter for his third career complete game and first since a one-hitter last May 21 at Oakland. He struck out four and walked four.

Bonds moved within 15 homers of Aaron's record. With two outs in the fourth inning, he sent the first pitch from Yusmeiro Petit (0-1) into the seats in the right-field arcade for his sixth homer of the season.

Bonds flied out and struck out looking in his other two at-bats. (AP)

Not 'L.A. Confidential'

Akashic's neo-noir books aren't bound by genre conventions

DARK ENTRIES | "Los Angeles Noir" is the 13th installment in the short story series by the Brooklyn-based independent Akashic Books. It's also the first to be set in the city that effectively invented the genre.

As she put the volume together, editor Denise Hamilton, a mystery writer herself, was conscious of the city's centrality to the tradition and the iconic work of noir forebears Raymond Chandler and James M. Cain.

"It's such a beloved, classic genre," Hamilton, 47, said. But noir, she said, "can become a sterile, closed-room, museum thing, because it's been done so well. I wanted to stay away from the stereotypes, so it could stay interesting and relevant to our era, as well as bring in the best of those classic noir tropes. How can you put a new spin on it, a new twist?"

Most of the series volumes, said press founder and publisher Johnny Temple — a former D.C. resident and member of the band Girls Against Boys — are organized by neighborhood. "And that model forces the books to explore hidden quarters of cities," keeping the stories spread around in terms of geography, class and ethnicity. For Hamilton, this push to challenge her readers also meant going beyond the usual suspects and structures, something that might rattle noir purists.

Only a few of the stories feature a detective or private eye. There's Michael Connelly, with a story called "Mulholland Dive," but no Robert Crais or James Ellroy or John Shannon. Instead, there's wise-guy "Alternadad" Neal Pollock — although he's the editor of Akashic's "Chicago Noir," he's a writer not usually associated with the genre — and "White Oleander" author Janet Fitch, typically considered a "literary" novelist. "I think noir has infiltrated our culture and our consciousness so much," she said, that it no longer feels like "slumming" to literary types.

Despite some general guidelines, Temple said, each book has its own character, with the editor and the city in question shaping the individual volumes enormously. "Dublin Noir" has a lot of punchy, clever, quick tales featuring tightly crafted stories," he said of the volume edited by Irish writer Ken Bruen. "In 'Brooklyn Noir,' you'll find almost no recognizable crime names but mostly literary writers writing crime fiction and doing it beautifully." (This area is represented, too: "D.C. Noir" was edited by George Pelecanos, and Laura Lippman handled "Baltimore Noir.")

For her part, Hamilton wanted stories that show how the city has changed in the seven decades since writers like Chandler were carving out the noir style.

"How can we incorporate those changes into a classic noir story," she said, "that feels very immediate and millennial and Pacific Rim and sprawling?"

NBC scrapes the bottom for the awful 'Wedding Crashers'

PUNKS | During the audacious pilot of the departed "Studio 60 on the Sunset Strip," a TV producer played by Judd Hirsch goes on a tirade, attacking network programmers for creative cowardice and "making content to appeal to 12-year-old boys, and not even the smart ones, but the dumb ones."

He could have been describing “The Real Wedding Crashers” (10 p.m., NBC). Combining elements of “Punk’d,” “Candid Camera" and a certain summer movie hit, "Crashers" will air for six laugh-free weeks.

On “Crashers,” real brides and grooms invite a troupe of pranksters to pull embarrassing practical jokes on their unsuspecting families and friends. In what can only be considered a comedy travesty, the jokesters on “Crashers” turn to the camera and reveal their not very clever or funny plans and setups before they unfold.

"Crashers" is interesting only in charting how far NBC has fallen. Seriously, it's as if the programmers at the Peacock Network were trying to promote TV Turnoff Week that, coincidentally, starts Monday. (For more information, check out tvturnoff.org/week.htm.)

LOVE AND RIOTS

AMERICAN EXPERIENCE (9 p.m., PBS) presents "Summer of Love," a glance at San Francisco in 1967. The film is rich in documentary footage of an American city trying to cope with an invasion of tourists, idealists and teenage runaways as dreams of a transformative youth revolution gave way to a squalid scene of crime, drug abuse and vagrancy. The film fails to mention that the summer of 1967 was anything but a love-in for millions of Americans living in dozens of cities convulsed by rioting.

9-year-old whiz kid is wowing critics with his musical talents

Ariel Lanyi sits on a pillow to reach his piano and needs to stand on a chair to play the double bass. He peeks over the rims of the drum set and isn't big enough to use a full-sized violin.

The piano is the 9-year-old Israeli prodigy's favorite instrument, but when he gets going at a jam session, he can't stick to just one, playing each with dexterity well beyond his years.

The classically trained whiz kid has already recorded a jazz album and is now the youngest member of the Kadima Collective, a leading avant-garde jazz troupe in Israel.

Ariel began playing his family's piano at 2. By the time he had his first formal lesson, two years later, he could already play a Bach prelude. At 7, he discovered jazz.

He said he knows he's different from other children, but that's a good thing.

"I'm special — unique," he said.

On a recent weekend, Ariel stayed up past his 9 p.m. bedtime to perform a free-form jazz concert in a small bar in Jerusalem.

His gray-haired teacher, Jean Claude "J.C." Jones, squeezed rhythms from every part of the bass during the performance, while the dimpled, blue-eyed protege replied on the violin.

"The music is completely mature and exceptionally developed," wrote local jazz critic Adam Baruch on his blog at jazzis.com. "It's almost scary to imagine what this kid will be up to in a few years."

BORN TO PLAY: Young musician Ariel Lanyi plays the piano, his favorite instrument.

7, Ariel accidentally clicked on a link to the great jazz pianist Earl Hines. He couldn't get enough.

"Within months of hearing jazz, he was an expert because he downloaded hundreds of songs," his father said. "He lives half his life on the Internet."

When it comes to music, Ariel has no inhibitions. During a jam session, he'll reach over and pluck the strings of Jones' bass, or during a concert stomp the stage and play a jig on the violin while performing an Irish step dance.

"Not only do I want to be a classical pianist and jazz pianist and a composer," Ariel said. "I've decided I also want to be a musical comedian."

Lea Sarni, principal at Ariel's school, said the third-grader is a good student who gets along with his classmates and works hard. "We're all very proud of Ariel," she said. "Maybe he'll be famous one day and I will be very proud to say he was my student."

Jones, who doesn't usually teach children, said he didn't know whether Ariel would become a great jazz pianist, but he was certain he would be "big in music" in some form.

"He's tough. He knows what he wants," Jones said. "That's good in music." MARSHALL THOMPSON (AP)

For Kids

A how-to manual for childhood mischief is all the rage in Britain

Nostalgia ain't what it used to be.

In these frenzied, media-saturated times, the lure of a simpler past is more powerful than ever.

That may explain the success of "The Dangerous Book for Boys," a deliberately retro tome that has become the publishing sensation of the year in Britain.

Exuding the brisk breeziness of Boy Scout manuals and Boy's Own annuals, "The Dangerous Book" is a childhood how-to guide that covers everything from paper airplanes to go-carts, skipping stones to skinning a rabbit.

It spent months on British best-seller lists, has sold more than half a million copies and took the book of the year prize at last month's British Book Awards.

The book will be published in

"I thought, 'I want to write it straight and I want to write it optimistically, because that's what childhood is about.'"

CONN IGGULDEN, AUTHOR

the United States May 1, allowing American boys — but not their sisters — to learn how to play marbles, make invisible ink, send Morse code and build a tree fort.

"I wanted to do the kind of book that we had lusted after when we were kids," said Conn Iggulden, who co-wrote the book with his younger brother Hal.

"My dad was born in 1923 and his father was born in 1850, and we had some old books in the house with titles like 'Chemical Amusements and Experiments' and 'Fun With Gunpowder.' The thing we didn't have was a single compendium of everything we wanted to do. I remember endlessly looking through these [books], generally to find things that I could make explode or set on fire."

He and Hal, a theater director, researched the "Dangerous Book" over six months in a garden shed, rediscovering the lost childhood arts of secret codes and water bombs and building simple batteries and pinhole projectors.

"Rule No. 1 was we either had to make it or do it — we've both read books where the author clearly hasn't made a raft or whatever, and so the instructions don't work," Iggulden said.

Susan Watt, the book's publisher at HarperCollins, said its appeal lies in the fact that it is "a celebration as much as a how-to book."

"They're celebrating a romantic vision of their boyhood," she said.

There's an old-fashioned, improving tone to the book, with its chapters on famous battles and true tales of courage, its Latin phrases and rules of grammar, and "seven poems every boy should know."

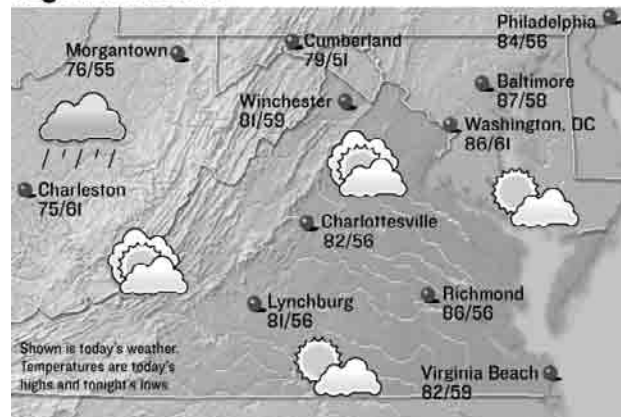

"I don't think it is particularly old-fashioned," Iggulden said. "I think the reason people think it is old-fashioned is that it's optimistic, and an awful lot of modern books tend to be fairly cynical in their outlook."

"I thought, 'I want to write it straight and I want to write it optimistically, because that's what childhood is about.' You don't have any doors shut in your face. You can be absolutely anything; you can be interested in anything." JILL LAWLESS (AP)

Rush hour on Metro is no time to be lugging a Sherpa-sized load of gym gear, laptops and other essentials. Don't invest in yak-hair boots yet: These multitasking satchels hold it all — and won't mow down commuters in the process. JAMIE PAGE DEATON

(1) Don't let the name fool you. The Hoax Messenger Bag from Crumpler is full of truth, and you can make it full of your stuff, too. It purportedly will carry two six-packs with no problem, for instance. If your daily load can't fit in this bag, you're carrying too much. ($105, crumplerbags.com)

(2) Are you rugged and conservative? Then you'd look comfortable lugging the Orvis Battenkill Overnight Briefcase on your next business/hunting-and-fishing trip. And though it works as luggage, it's still slender enough for the commute. Plus, it can be monogrammed! ($180, orvis.com)

(3) eBags' Kalya is slim enough to be mistaken for a messenger bag, yet can swallow a giant wad of gym clothes, including shoes. The bottom has straps to carry a yoga mat or towel, the top flap is robust enough to handle work files, and the side compartments keep water bottles, music players and cell phones organized. (in four colors, $50, ebags.com)

(4) No one on Metro likes being whacked by an overstuffed backpack, and wearing one makes you look like a turtle. The Underground Day Pack from Timbuk2 manages to stay slim while holding a lot. Zippered side pockets stash cash, keys and electronics, while an interior divider keeps sweaty socks away from papers that shouldn't smell like feet. ($75, timbuk2.com)

(5) A classic never dies, so L.L. Bean's Zip-Top Boat and Tote bag ($30) is still alive and kicking. Long straps transform the original, stumpier silhouette into a shoulder bag, leaving your hands free to grasp fruitlessly for the overhead rails in Metro's new cars. Though short on interior pockets, the Boat and Tote has plenty of interior space and can hold a couple of outfits. ($30, llbean.com)

Beauty

Double Play

Makeup multitasking used to be a daring feat only attempted by cosmetics wizards who could look flawless using only lipstick and a Kleenex. Now, anyone can do it with polymathic products like THE BALM'S HOT MAMA! ($18, thebalm.com). Cheaters! The pinkish-peach blush/eye shadow goes on like frosted lipstick for the face—it's not glittery, but there's definitely some glinting going on. You have to pile on a lot to see the color, and it won't suit tired souls with red-rimmed eyes. We even broke the rules and put it on our lips—and it wasn't bad! HOLLY J. MORRIS (EXPRESS)

Fragrance

The Smell of Snuggles

Why would the tagline for a perfume be "inspired by soap"? How would that convince people to use anything other than, you know, soap? WARM COTTON, the new fragrance from Clean ($76, Sephora), evokes fresh-from-the-dryer laundry. Spookily like laundry, like you ate Snuggle the Bear and all his Snuggly relatives, so you're so full of Snuggleness that you're actually sweating Snuggleocity. If you want to join the Snugglerama, it's a light scent for those who want to live in their laundry rooms. KRISTEN PAGE-KIRBY (EXPRESS)

Heated Issue

CHRISTINE TODD WHITMAN, head of the EPA from 2001 to 2003, was online Friday to discuss her environmental and energy consulting and the conservative conservationist movement.

As a liberal who's tried for a decade to get my right-leaning countrymen to listen to scientists rather than industry lobbyists regarding climate change, it is belatedly heartening to see conservatives waking up to conserv- ing our biosphere. Could you explain to me why this was not a “conservative value” from the start?

No, because I think it is, frankly. I agree this would be a conservative value, and I was very glad to see some evangelical leaders coming forward and saying just that. And now you have business leaders and even military leaders focusing on the importance of reducing greenhouse gas emissions.

Why do Republicans denigrate scientists so frequently?

Frankly, not all Republicans hate scientists. Unfortunately, it's a few leaders today in Congress who are the most skeptical, but there are a lot of Republicans who have a deep respect for scientists and science, and, in fact, there are scientists who are Republicans.

Do you not think that to preserve the planet's ecosystems in something close to their current forms that we will need to actively block sunlight, not just reduce greenhouse emissions?

We certainly need to replace the hole in the ozone layer. There's not much question about that. We've made some progress, but science is telling us there's more that we need to do.

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It is essential you keep your own desires and expectations in focus, or you're likely to risk both profit and standing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Spiritual or emotional navigation may be more difficult than expected; those signposts you've been relying on may be out of date.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take care your own private pursuits do not impose on others. What you want may not be appreciated by the world at large.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This is a good day for you to make that personal sacrifice in order to see a loved one excel in some respect. Your rewards are coming.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're feeling daring and experimental, and some may be shocked by the kinds of suggestions you have to offer. Observe protocol, propriety.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Questioning the decisions of others may attract a great deal of suspicion and criticism — but you'll be more informed in the long run.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Someone who rivals you in the charisma and ability departments is likely to arrive on the scene, forcing you to double your own efforts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) This is a good day to experiment with a newfound talent. You may discover you have a great deal of potential in a new field.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This is a good day to get in touch with a close friend — or, perhaps, someone you wish to get even closer to before the day is out.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may be feeling quite blue, but the cause is nothing you cannot address and erase quite effectively from your life. Concentrate.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You're likely to be quite restless, but your own dedication to one major goal will keep you on the right track when necessary.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your interest in others will extend to domestic affairs as well, but don't make the mistake of becoming intrusive, even unintentionally.

Refreshing Change of Pace

I WAS REALLY SURPRISED to see the photo in Friday's Express of a Palestinian man holding a sign saying "Free Alan," a call to free BBC correspondent Alan Johnston. The problem is, I shouldn't be surprised. It's become so commonplace to see photos of Middle Eastern militants burning U.S. flags and such that I fear people are starting to think that all Middle Eastern citizens hate us and our allies. This is simply not true, and I'm afraid that the media play a huge part in the prejudice against those of Middle Eastern descent. Please print more photos like this in the future.

Spears' Dad Defends Man Doing His Parenting for Him

Jamie Spears, father of BRITNEY SPEARS, defended his daughter's fired manager in the New York Post on Friday. "When Larry Rudolph talked Britney into going into rehab, he was doing what her mother, father and team of professionals with over 100 years of experience knew needed to be done," Spears told the Post. (Britney has said Rudolph should not have convinced her to go to rehab.) "Larry was the one chosen by the team to roll up his sleeves and ... help save her life." (EXPRESS)

As ALEC BALDWIN's angry words to his daughter were being broadcast all over, he explained himself on his Web site. "Although I have been told by numerous people not to worry too much, as all parents lose their patience with their kids, I am most saddened that this was released ... because of what it does to a child," he posted Friday. "I have been driven to the edge by parental alienation for many years now." #### Malawi Can Finally Make Fun of Madonna Again

MADONNA jetted out of Malawi on Sunday after a six-day visit to the impoverished homeland of the toddler she wants to adopt, carrying the boy in her arms as she boarded her plane. Madonna and husband Guy Ritchie took custody of David Banda last October after finding him in an orphanage. Critics said the 48-year-old star used her celebrity status to circumvent Malawian adoption laws — allegations she denies. The 20-month-old toddler waved to the bodyguards and driver who had escorted him during the visit. Madonna did not look back as she disappeared into the silver jet, with her daughter, Lourdes, following. Madonna made one visit to the Home of Hope orphanage, where David lived after the death of his mother in childbirth. (AP)

Special Report solves the "My home isn't selling" problem

WASHINGTON METRO – A "Special Report" explodes what its author exposes as "The myth of slow home sales." In fact, the Report explains, in clear and plain English, how a home owner who wants to sell can not only count on a sale within 120 days but can be guaranteed that the sale will occur.

The Report proves its accuracy by quoting specific local instances in which the technique it describes has sold homes time after time, quickly, efficiently, and at a favorable price.

The author of the report, noted realtor Frank Sanya, has made numerous appearances on both television and radio.

Mr. Sanya states that the Report represents the compendium of his many years of real estate experience and can be of substantial value to homeowners, especially those whose homes have been on the market unsold for a considerable period of time. The author emphasizes that although he does not accept every listing, by following the Report's procedures he accomplishes a sale in every instance in which he is the broker of record.

The secret, says the Report, is a combination of traits and procedures that consistently result in a successful sale. For a free copy of the Report, go to a private but available Web site – www.WantItSoldNow.com.

Robert Hein and Deborah Fenwick

Little did I know that my neighbors' pestering me to go to HealthFair would save me from having a stroke. Ray, who lives next door, had gone to HealthFair in December, where they found a large aneurysm on his aorta. With urgent surgery, the HealthFair test saved Ray's life. After that, every time I saw Barbara, Ray's wife, she asked me when I was going to HealthFair to get tested. I finally agreed to go, and I am very glad I did. HealthFair found that I had a very clogged carotid artery and told me to see my doctor immediately. I was shocked. I always have regular and vigorous physical exams. I'm 63 years old, slim built, don't smoke, eat a fairly low-fat diet, and exercise regularly. I ride my bike 25 miles twice a week, play softball four days a week, and play golf. I have normal blood pressure, normal cholesterol, and a healthy heart. Within a week of the HealthFair screening, I was in Ocala Regional Hospital having surgery on the clogged artery. Many of the hospital staff were surprised by my condition considering my otherwise good health. My surgeon, Dr. Earl Stewart, told me the artery was over 80% blocked and the plaque unstable. He was surprised that I hadn't already had a stroke, and was sure I would've had one soon without surgery. Within a week of surgery, I was up and able to resume my normal activities. HealthFair provided a miracle for me and my neighbor, Ray. I think everyone should have the screening. It's the best money I have ever spent. Sincerely, Robert Hein.

HEART ATTACK PREVENTION PACKAGE

ECHOCARDIOGRAM
ULTRASOUND TEST

Echocardiogram is a video ultrasound of the heart. It may detect enlargement of the heart, valve abnormalities, blood clots and tumors.

ELECTROCARDIOGRAM
(EKG) TEST

EKG may detect ischemia, silent heart attack and atrial fibrillation. EKG provides a picture of the electrical activity of the heart.

HARDENING OF THE
ARTERIES (ASI) TEST

Hardened arteries cause the heart to work harder, which leads to vascular disease. ASI test shows the degree of hardening of the arteries.

ALL 3 TESTS

$139

These cardiac tests are painless and non-invasive. The combined cost is more than $1,300 at most hospitals.
